Rutgers University

Summer Workshop Application Form:

“TEACHING THE HISTORY OF THE SLAVE TRADE ROUTES OF GHANA AND BENIN”

Applicants will be selected on the basis of their commitment to and capacity for (a) creating curricular materials derived from participation in the workshop and (b) introducing a unit on the history of the interior slave routes and the slave trade into an existing course, or developing a new course based on such materials. Applicants also will have to demonstrate institutional support for the curricular project and agree to attend seminars at Rutgers University both before and after the workshop. Priority will be given to applicants from schools and institutions with a significant African and African American student population concerned with relevant curricular development.
